DIVINE EDUCATORS

In Tihrán, Persia (now Iran), in 1817, a noble family had a son named Mírzá Husayn-'Alí. From a young age, He showed extraordinary wisdom, compassion, and spiritual insight. He could explain complex religious teachings with such clarity that even Muslim leaders listened with interest.

In 1819, Siyyid 'Alí-Muhammad was born in Shíráz. As a child, He amazed teachers with His knowledge and devotion. He could often be found immersed in prayer.

Siyyid 'Alí-Muhammad grew up to become the Báb ("the Gate" in Arabic). He was sent by God to announce a new time in history that would lead to world unity. He urged people to seek another Messenger of God Who would bring this glorious day.

That Messenger was Mírzá Husayn-'Alí. In 1863, He declared that He was the Promised One Who would establish the oneness of humanity. He became known as Bahá'u'lláh (the "Glory of God" in Arabic).

This year, Bahá'ís and friends celebrate the births of these Divine Educators on November 10 and 11. The Twin Holy Birthdays are a joyful time to reach out to others in friendship and help build communities filled with hope and peace.
